How to test a business idea

People in a park on a hot day often look for refreshing drinks. You observe that many are carrying water bottles but no one is selling cold drinks nearby.

Conclusion: There's likely a demand for home made lemonade here.

Testing Business ideas

Customer Segments

Who will be using this product or feature?

Channels

How will your customers access this feature or product?

Value Proposition

What problem does your product or feature solve, or what benefit does it provide?

Customer Relationships

What kind of relationship does the product or feature foster with its users (e.g., self-service, personal support)?

Testing Business ideas

Customer Segments

Who will be using this product or feature?

Thirsty people in the park

Dog walkers, families, joggers

Channels

How will your customers access this feature or product?

Sales Channel: The lemonade stand itself (physical, direct-to-customer).

Marketing Channel: Visible signage in the park to catch the attention of passersby, and possibly word-of-mouth from happy customers.

Desirable

Do they want this?

Value Proposition

What problem does your product or feature solve, or what benefit does it provide?

Quenches thirst

Easy access to a cold drink
Don't need to carry water bottles

Homemade, cold, affordable, convenient

Type of Relationship: Personal, casual interaction at the stand. Friendly service builds rapport and encourages repeat purchases.

Maintaining Relationship: Engage with customers by asking about their day or offering small discounts

Customer Relationships

What kind of relationship does the product or feature foster with its users (e.g., self-service, personal support)?

Testing Business ideas

Key Partners

Who do you rely on to operate and deliver your product effectively?

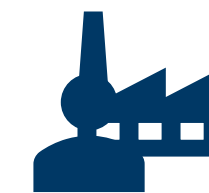

Key Activities

What are the most important tasks or processes required keep the product valuable and functional?

Desirable
Do they want this?

Feasible
Can we do this?

Key Resources

What resources (technical, human, physical, financial) are needed to deliver the product's value?

Testing Business ideas

Key Partners

Who do you rely on to operate and deliver your product effectively?

Supermarket: for lemons, sugar, and cups.

Park Authority: Permission to set up the stand and operate in the park.

Equipment Providers: For essentials like a table, cooler, and sign materials.

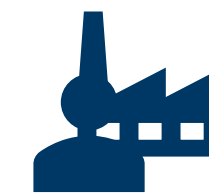

Key Activities

What are the most important tasks or processes required keep the product valuable and functional?

Production: Preparing the lemonade
Sales: Engaging with customers, taking payments, and serving lemonade.

Operations: Restocking supplies, keeping the stand clean, and maintaining the equipment.

Key Resources

What resources (technical, human, physical, financial) are needed to deliver the product's value?

Physical: Lemons, sugar, water, ice, cups, a cooler, a table, and a sign.

Human: Yourself or a helper to run the stand.

Financial: A small amount of starting capital for supplies and equipment.

Location: A prime spot in the park with high foot traffic.

Desirable

Do they want this?

Feasible

Can we do this?

Testing Business ideas

Cost Structure

What will it cost to develop, deliver, and maintain the product or feature and how do they align with the revenue streams?

Fixed Costs (One-time or infrequent expenses):

Table: £30

Cooler: £20

Signage: £10

Variable Costs (Costs per glass of lemonade):

Lemons: £0.20 per glass

Sugar: £0.05 per glass

Cups: £0.10 per glass

Ice: £0.05 per glass

Revenue Streams

If you build this product or feature how can you monetize it? Or if you build this what is the expected amount of cost savings and how will you measure it?

Selling Price per Glass: £2.00

Profit per Glass: £2.00 - £0.40 = £1.60

If you sell 50 glasses in a day:

Daily Revenue: £100

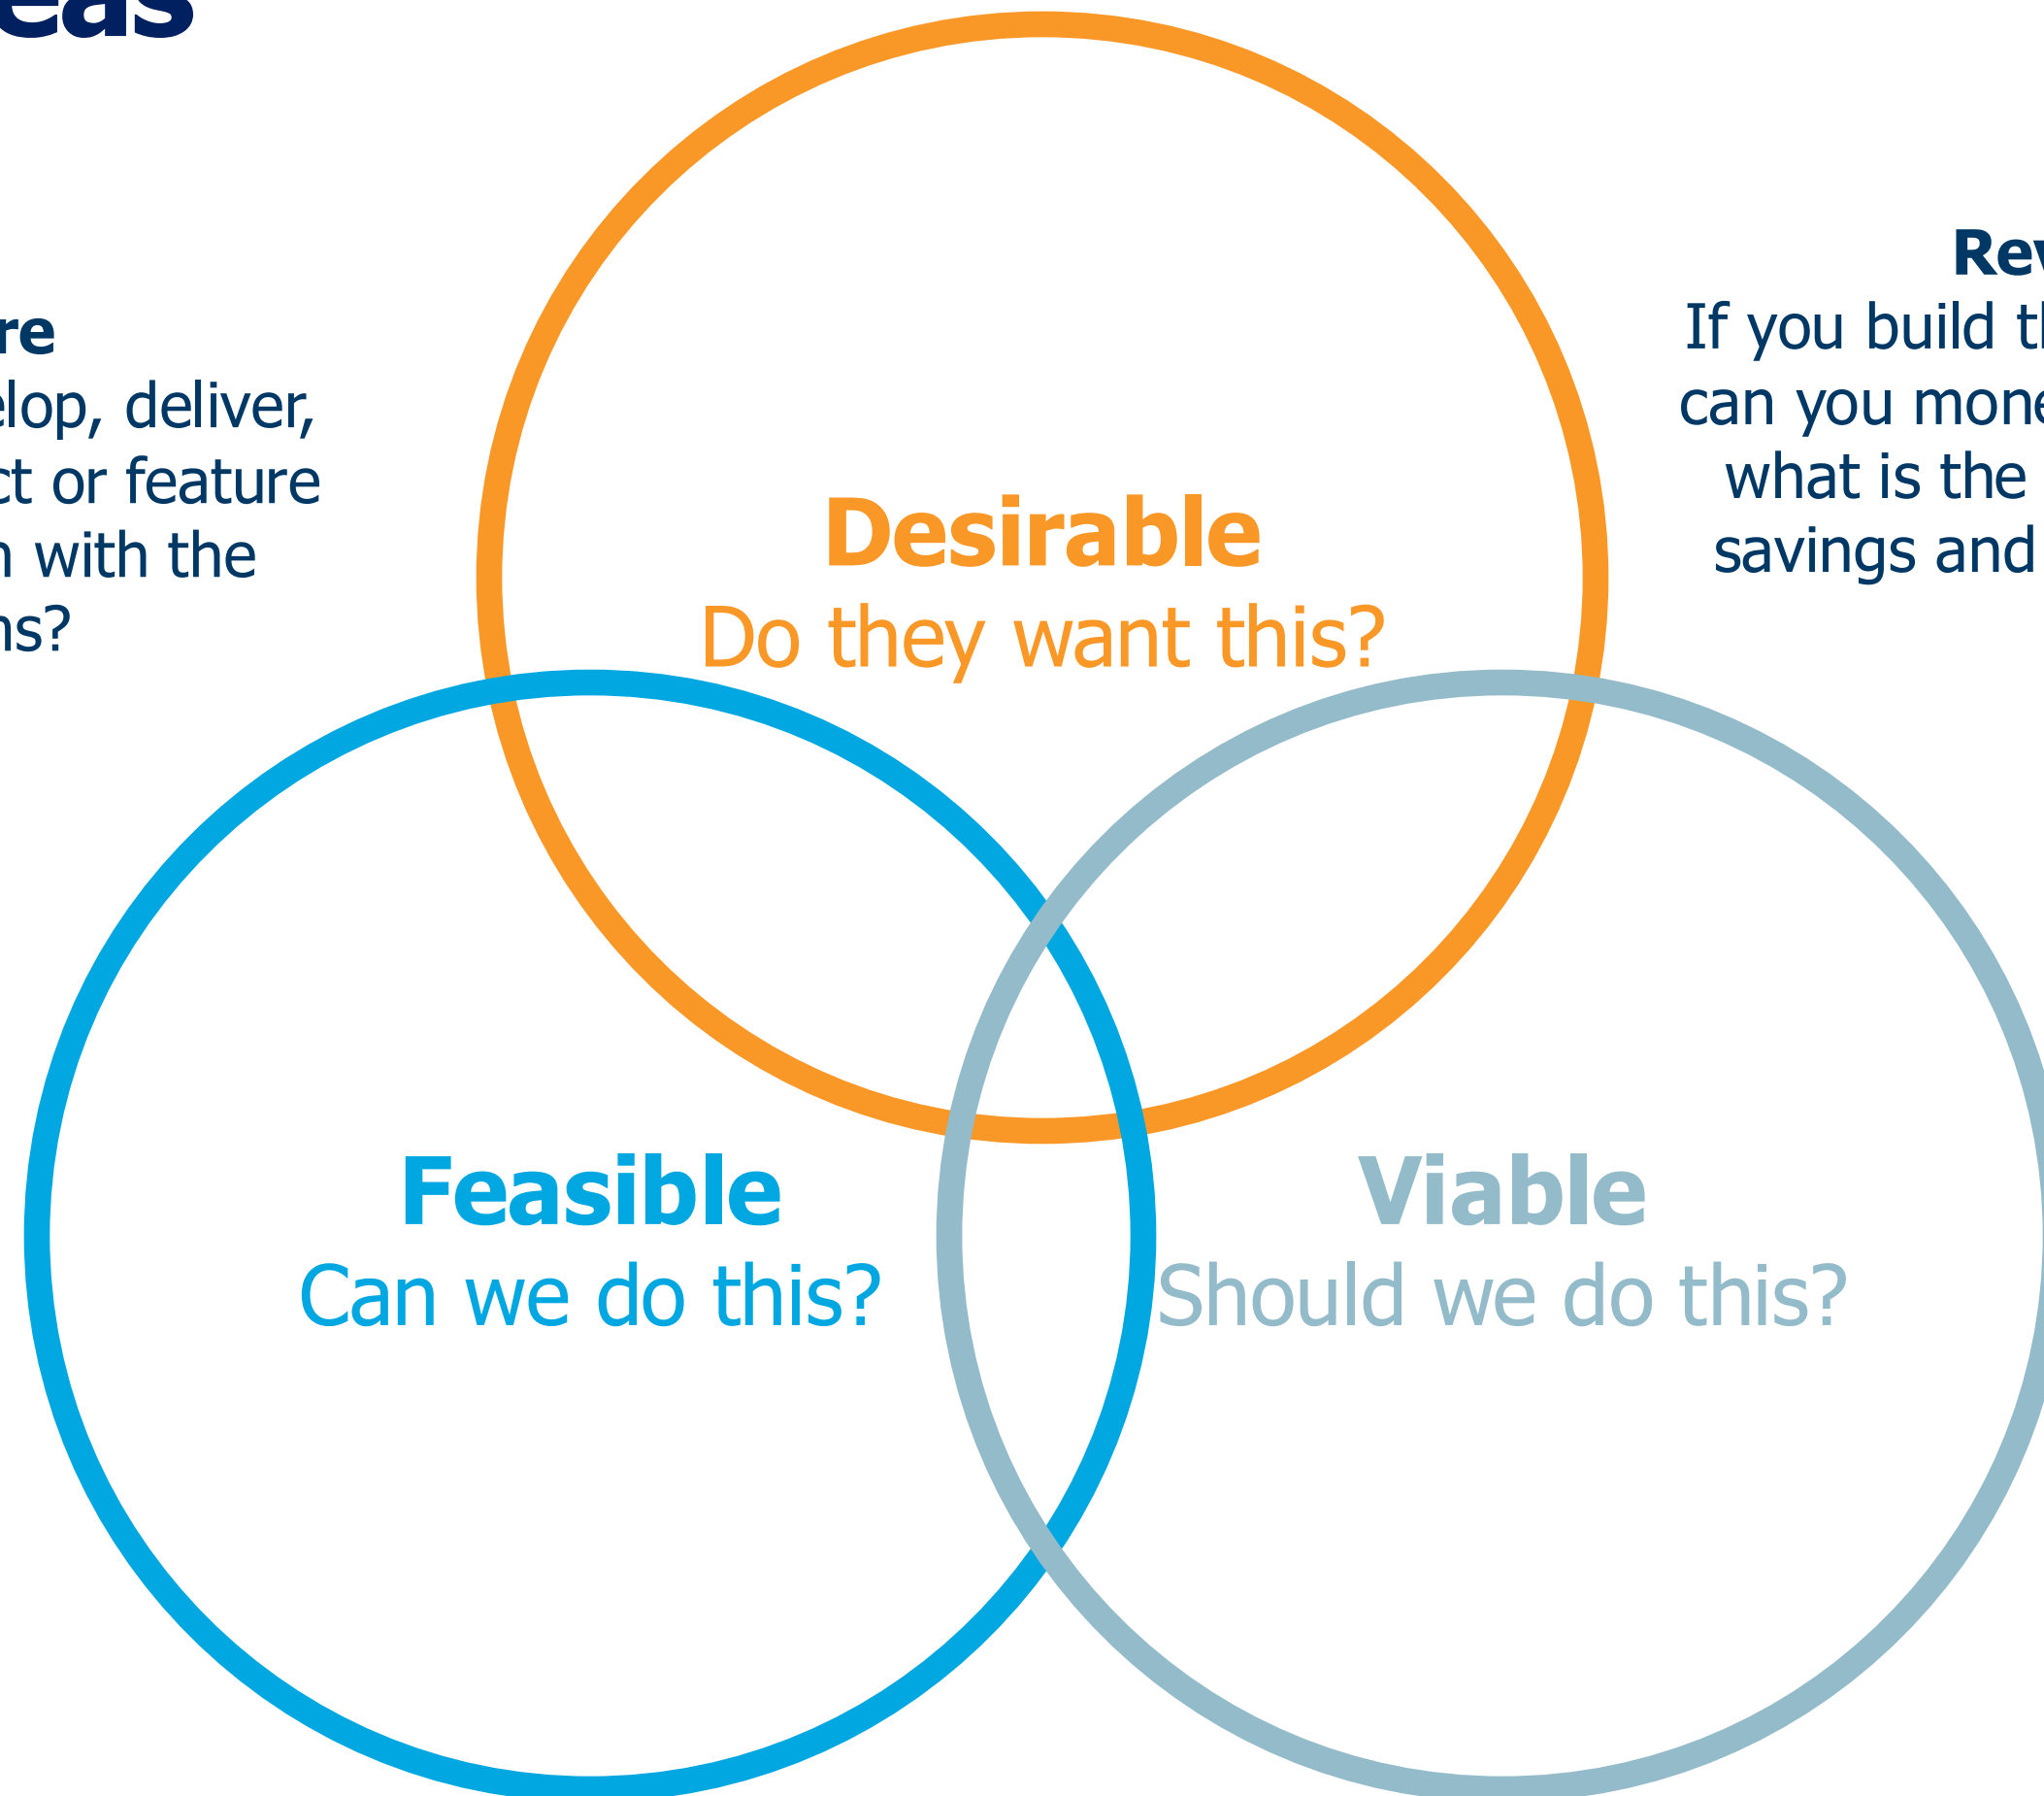

Daily Costs: £20

Daily Profit: £80

Break-Even Point:

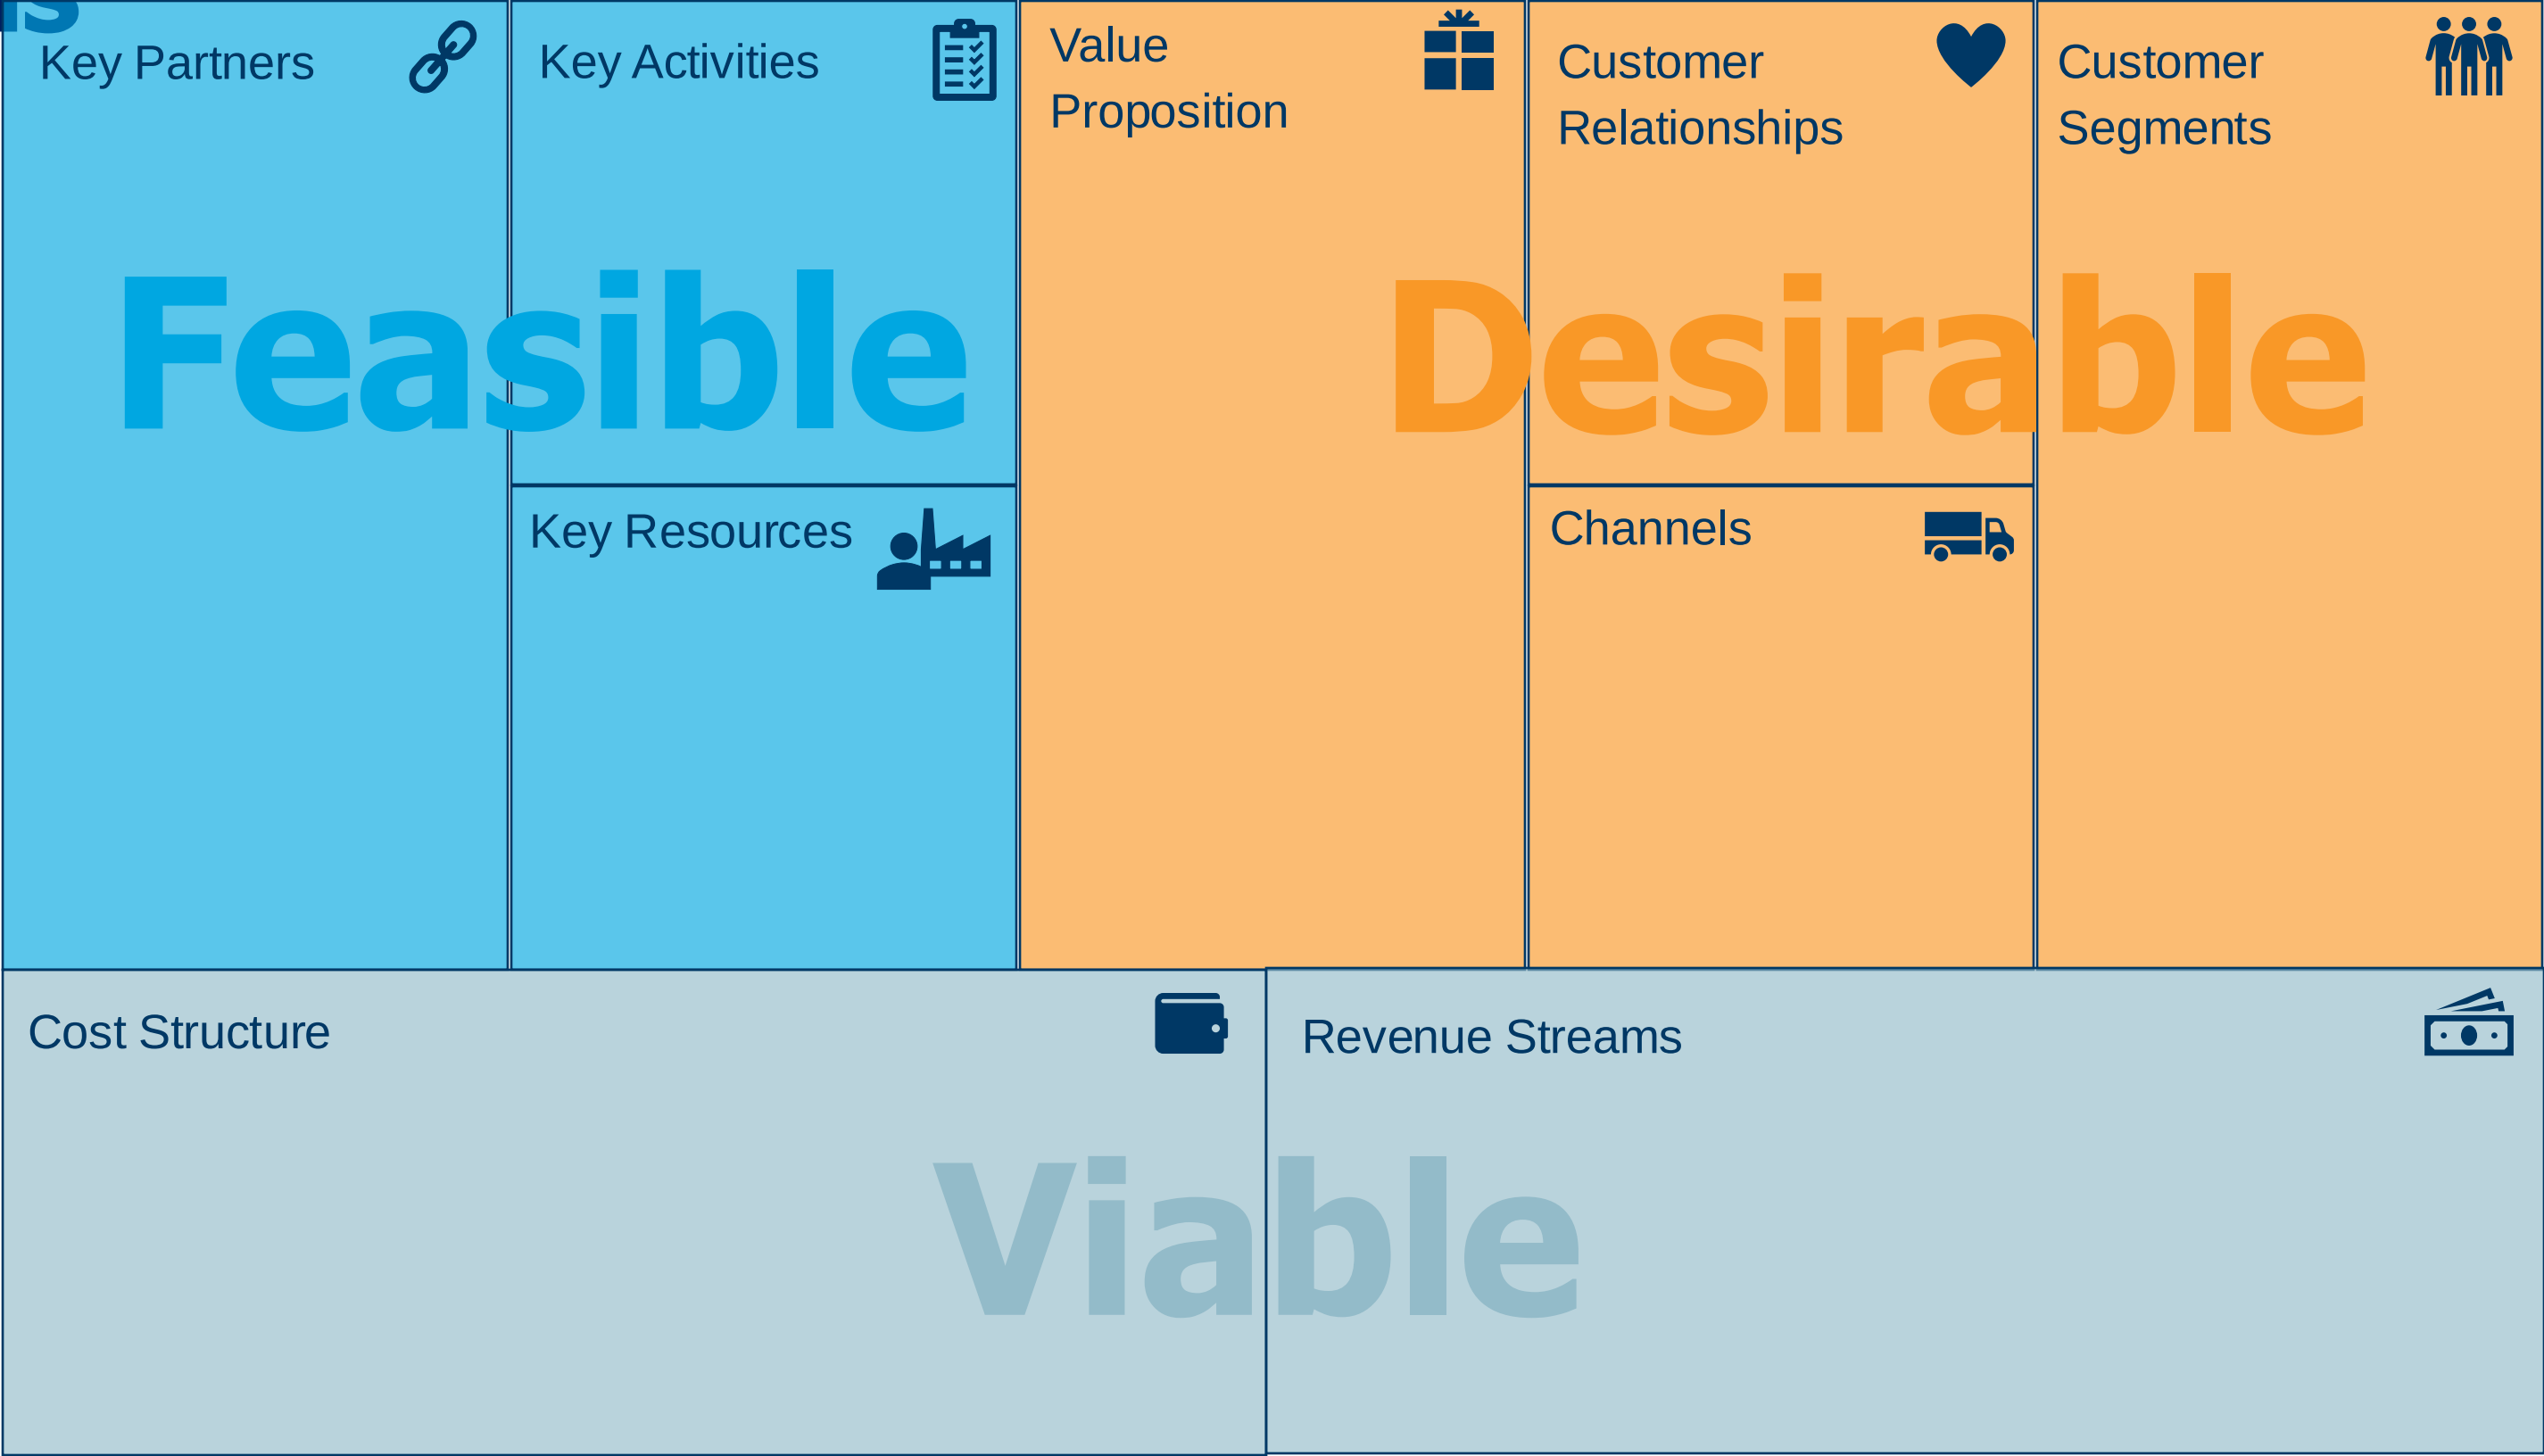

To cover the £60 fixed costs, you'd need to sell: £60 ÷ £1.60 (profit per glass) = ~38 glasses

After 38 glasses, you start making a net profit!

Testing

Assumptions using Experimentation

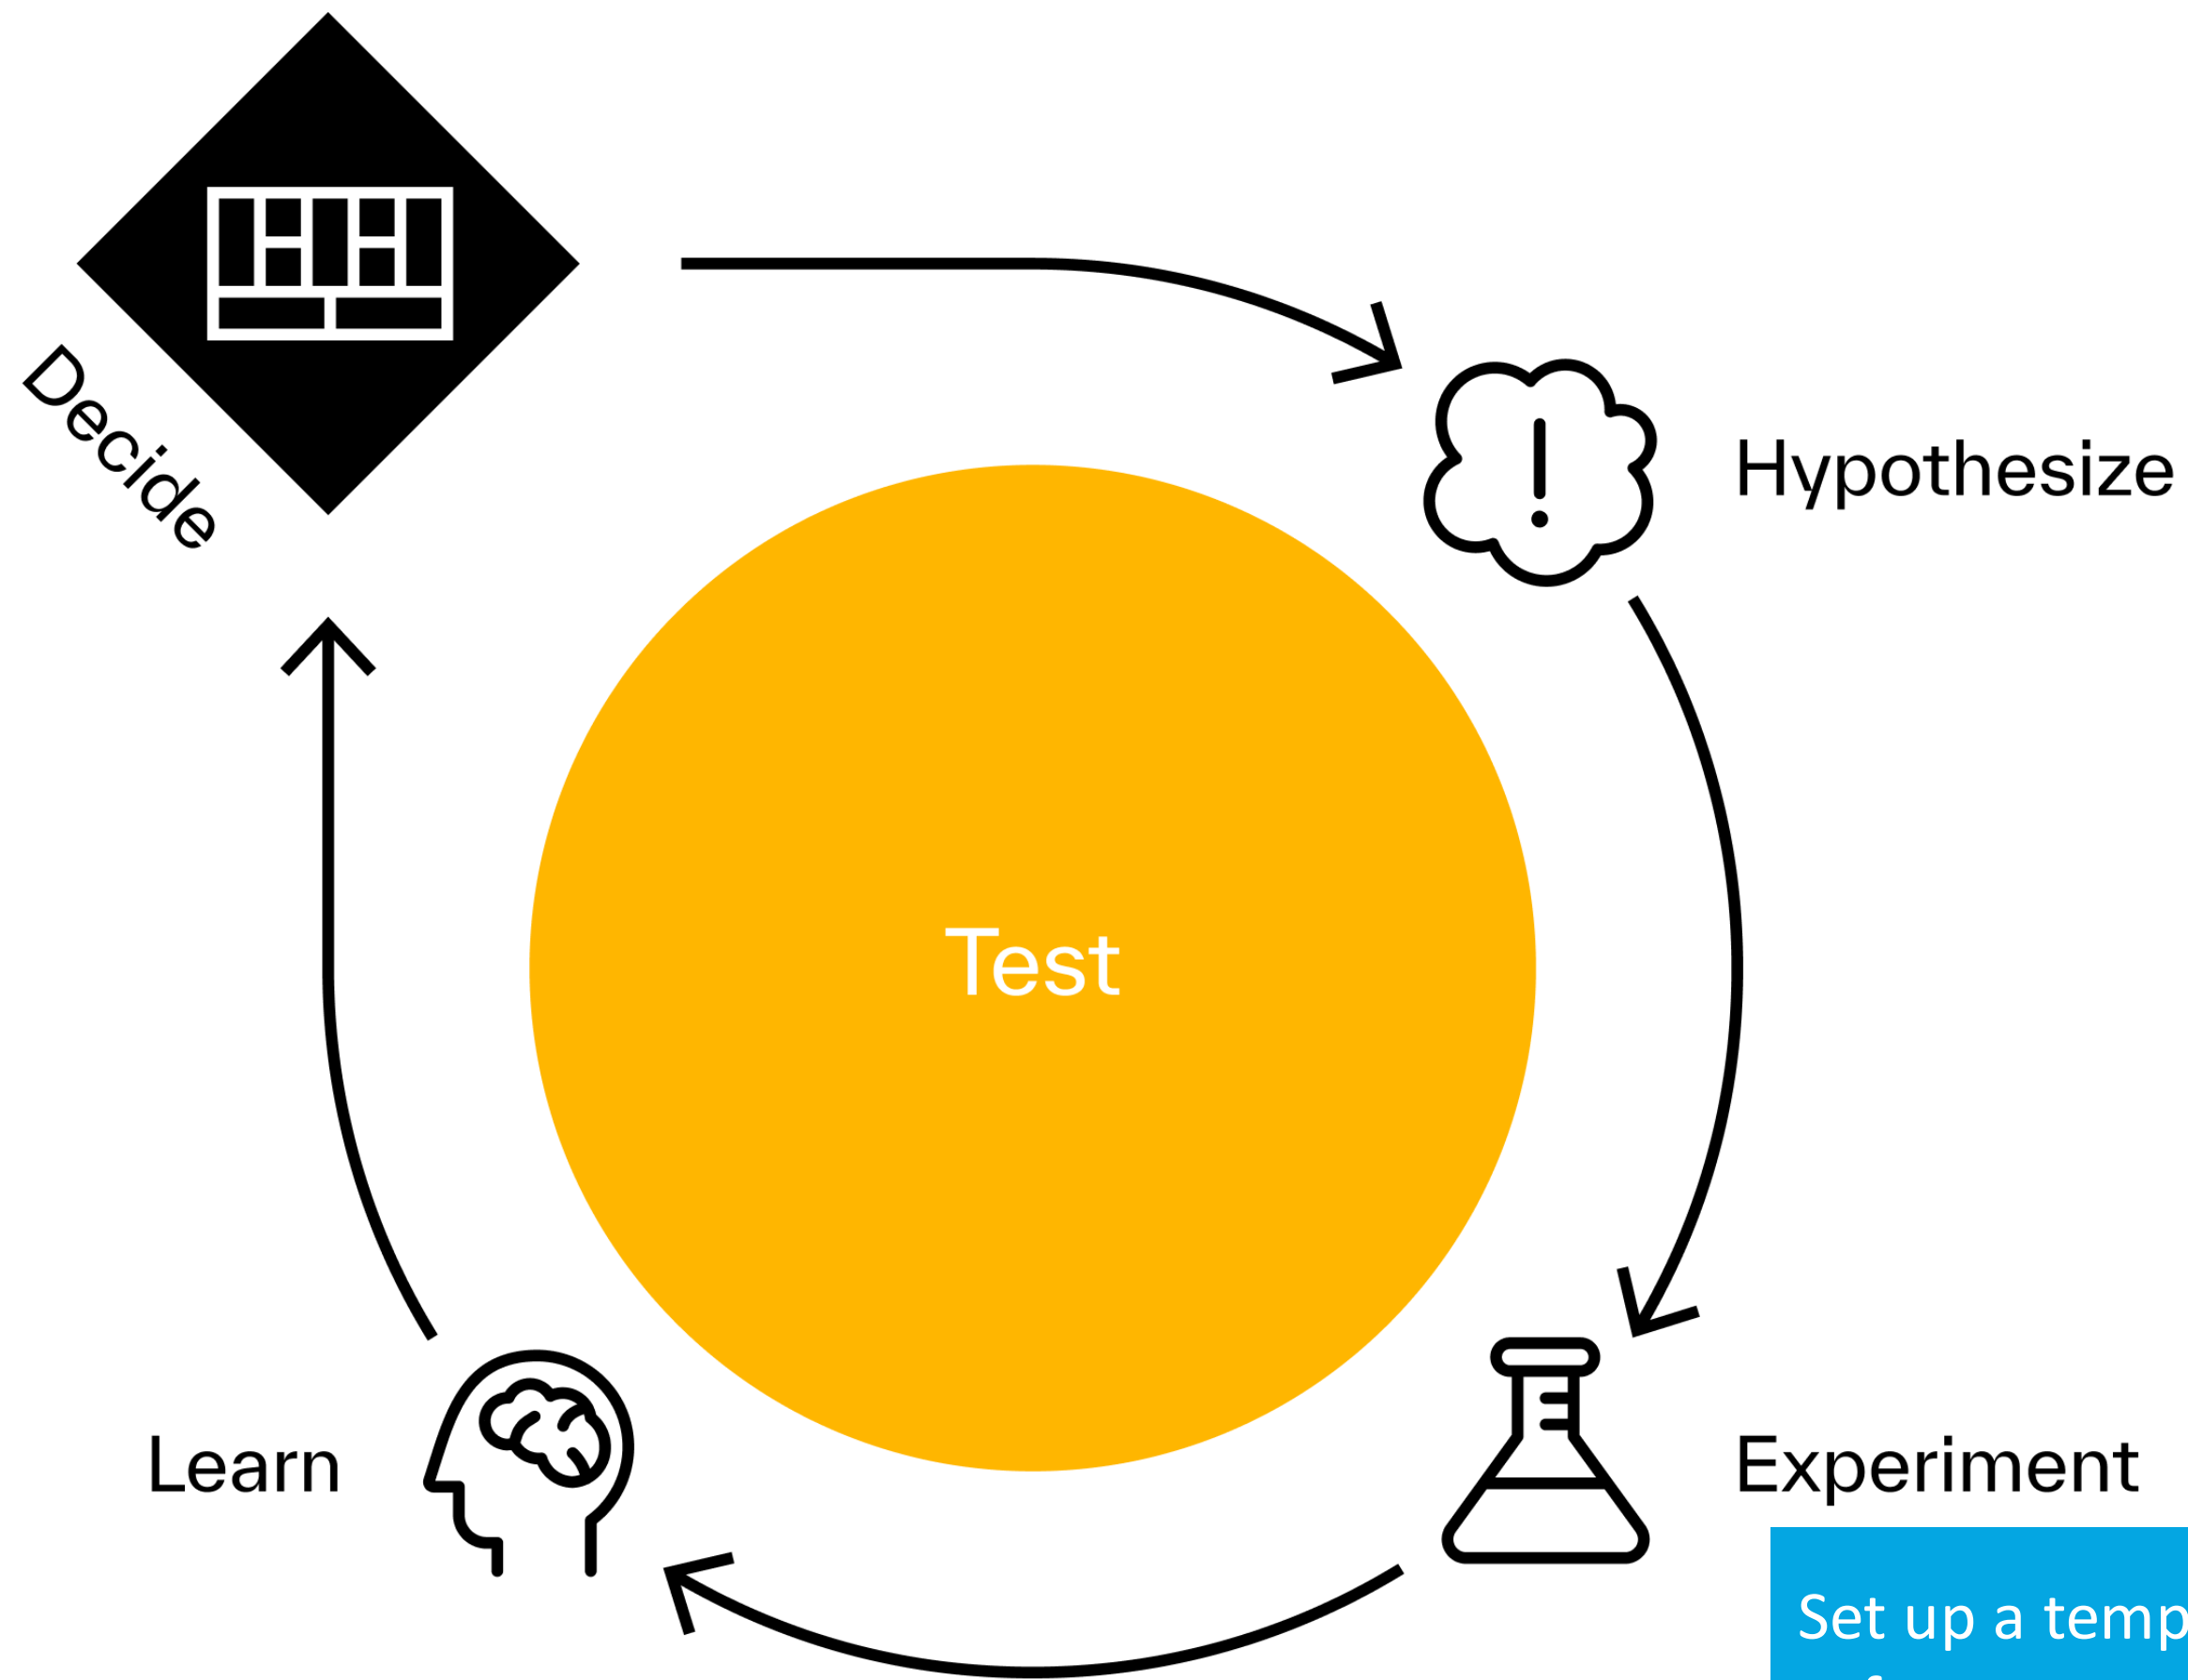

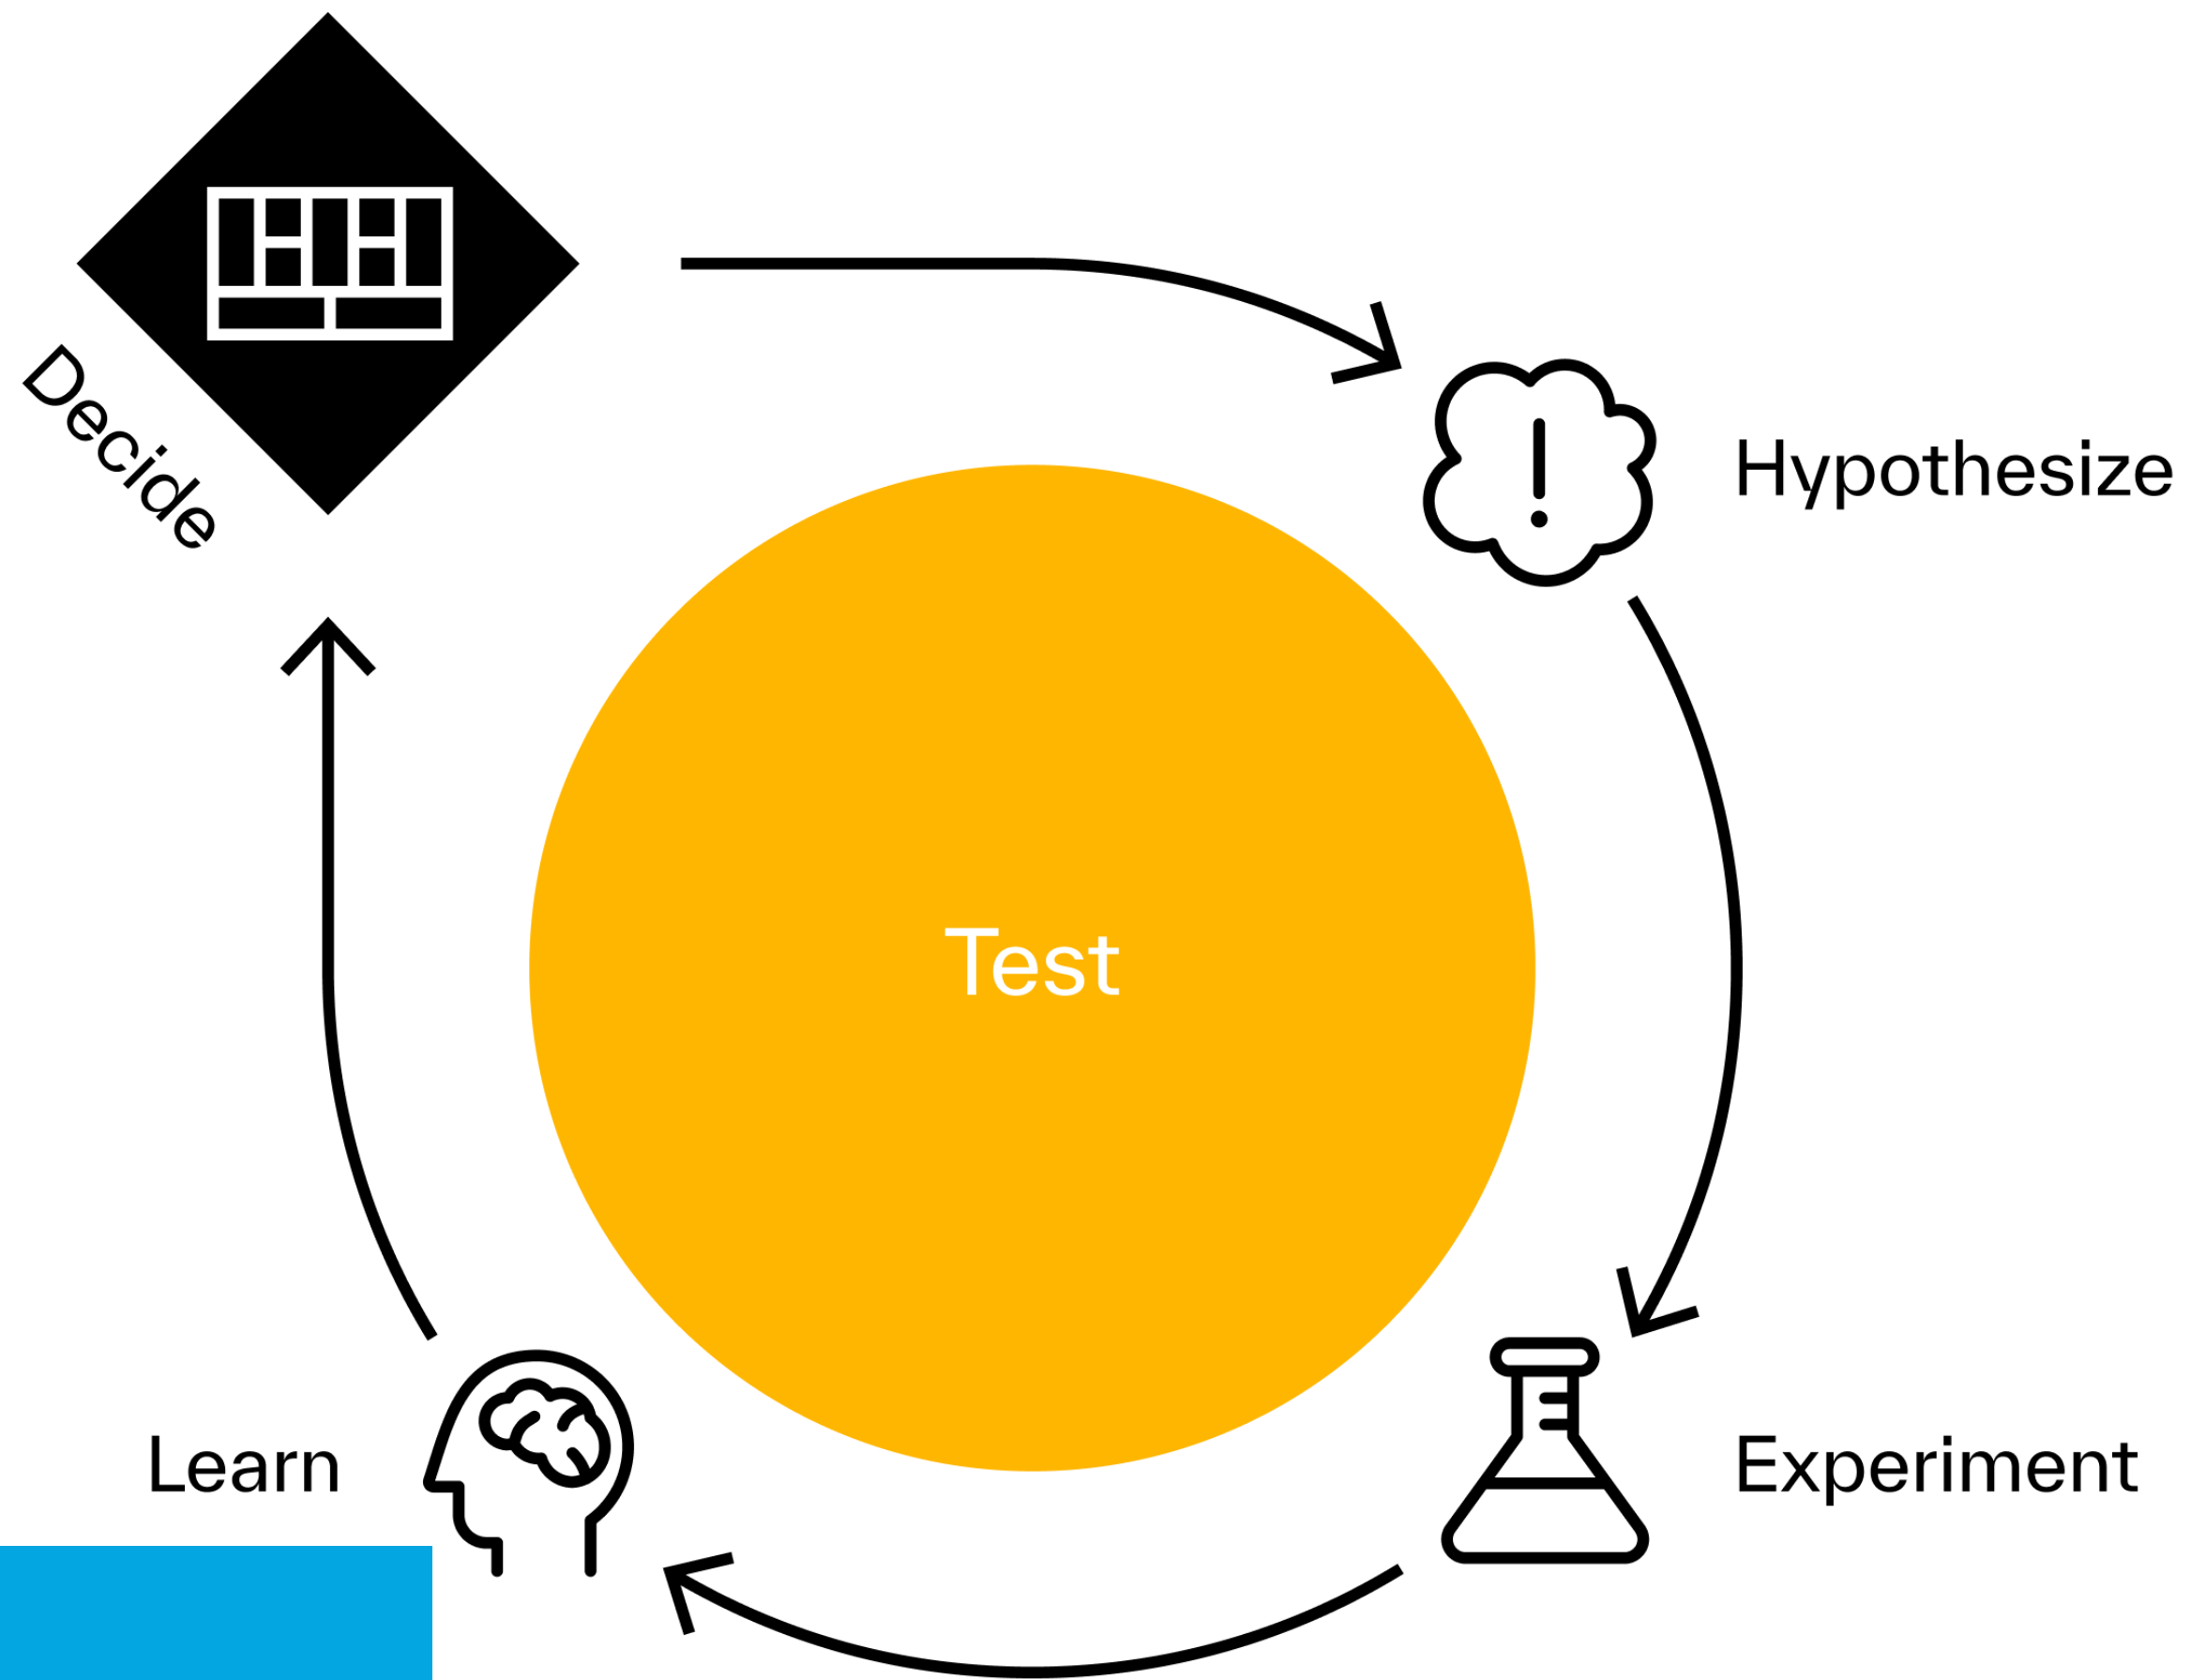

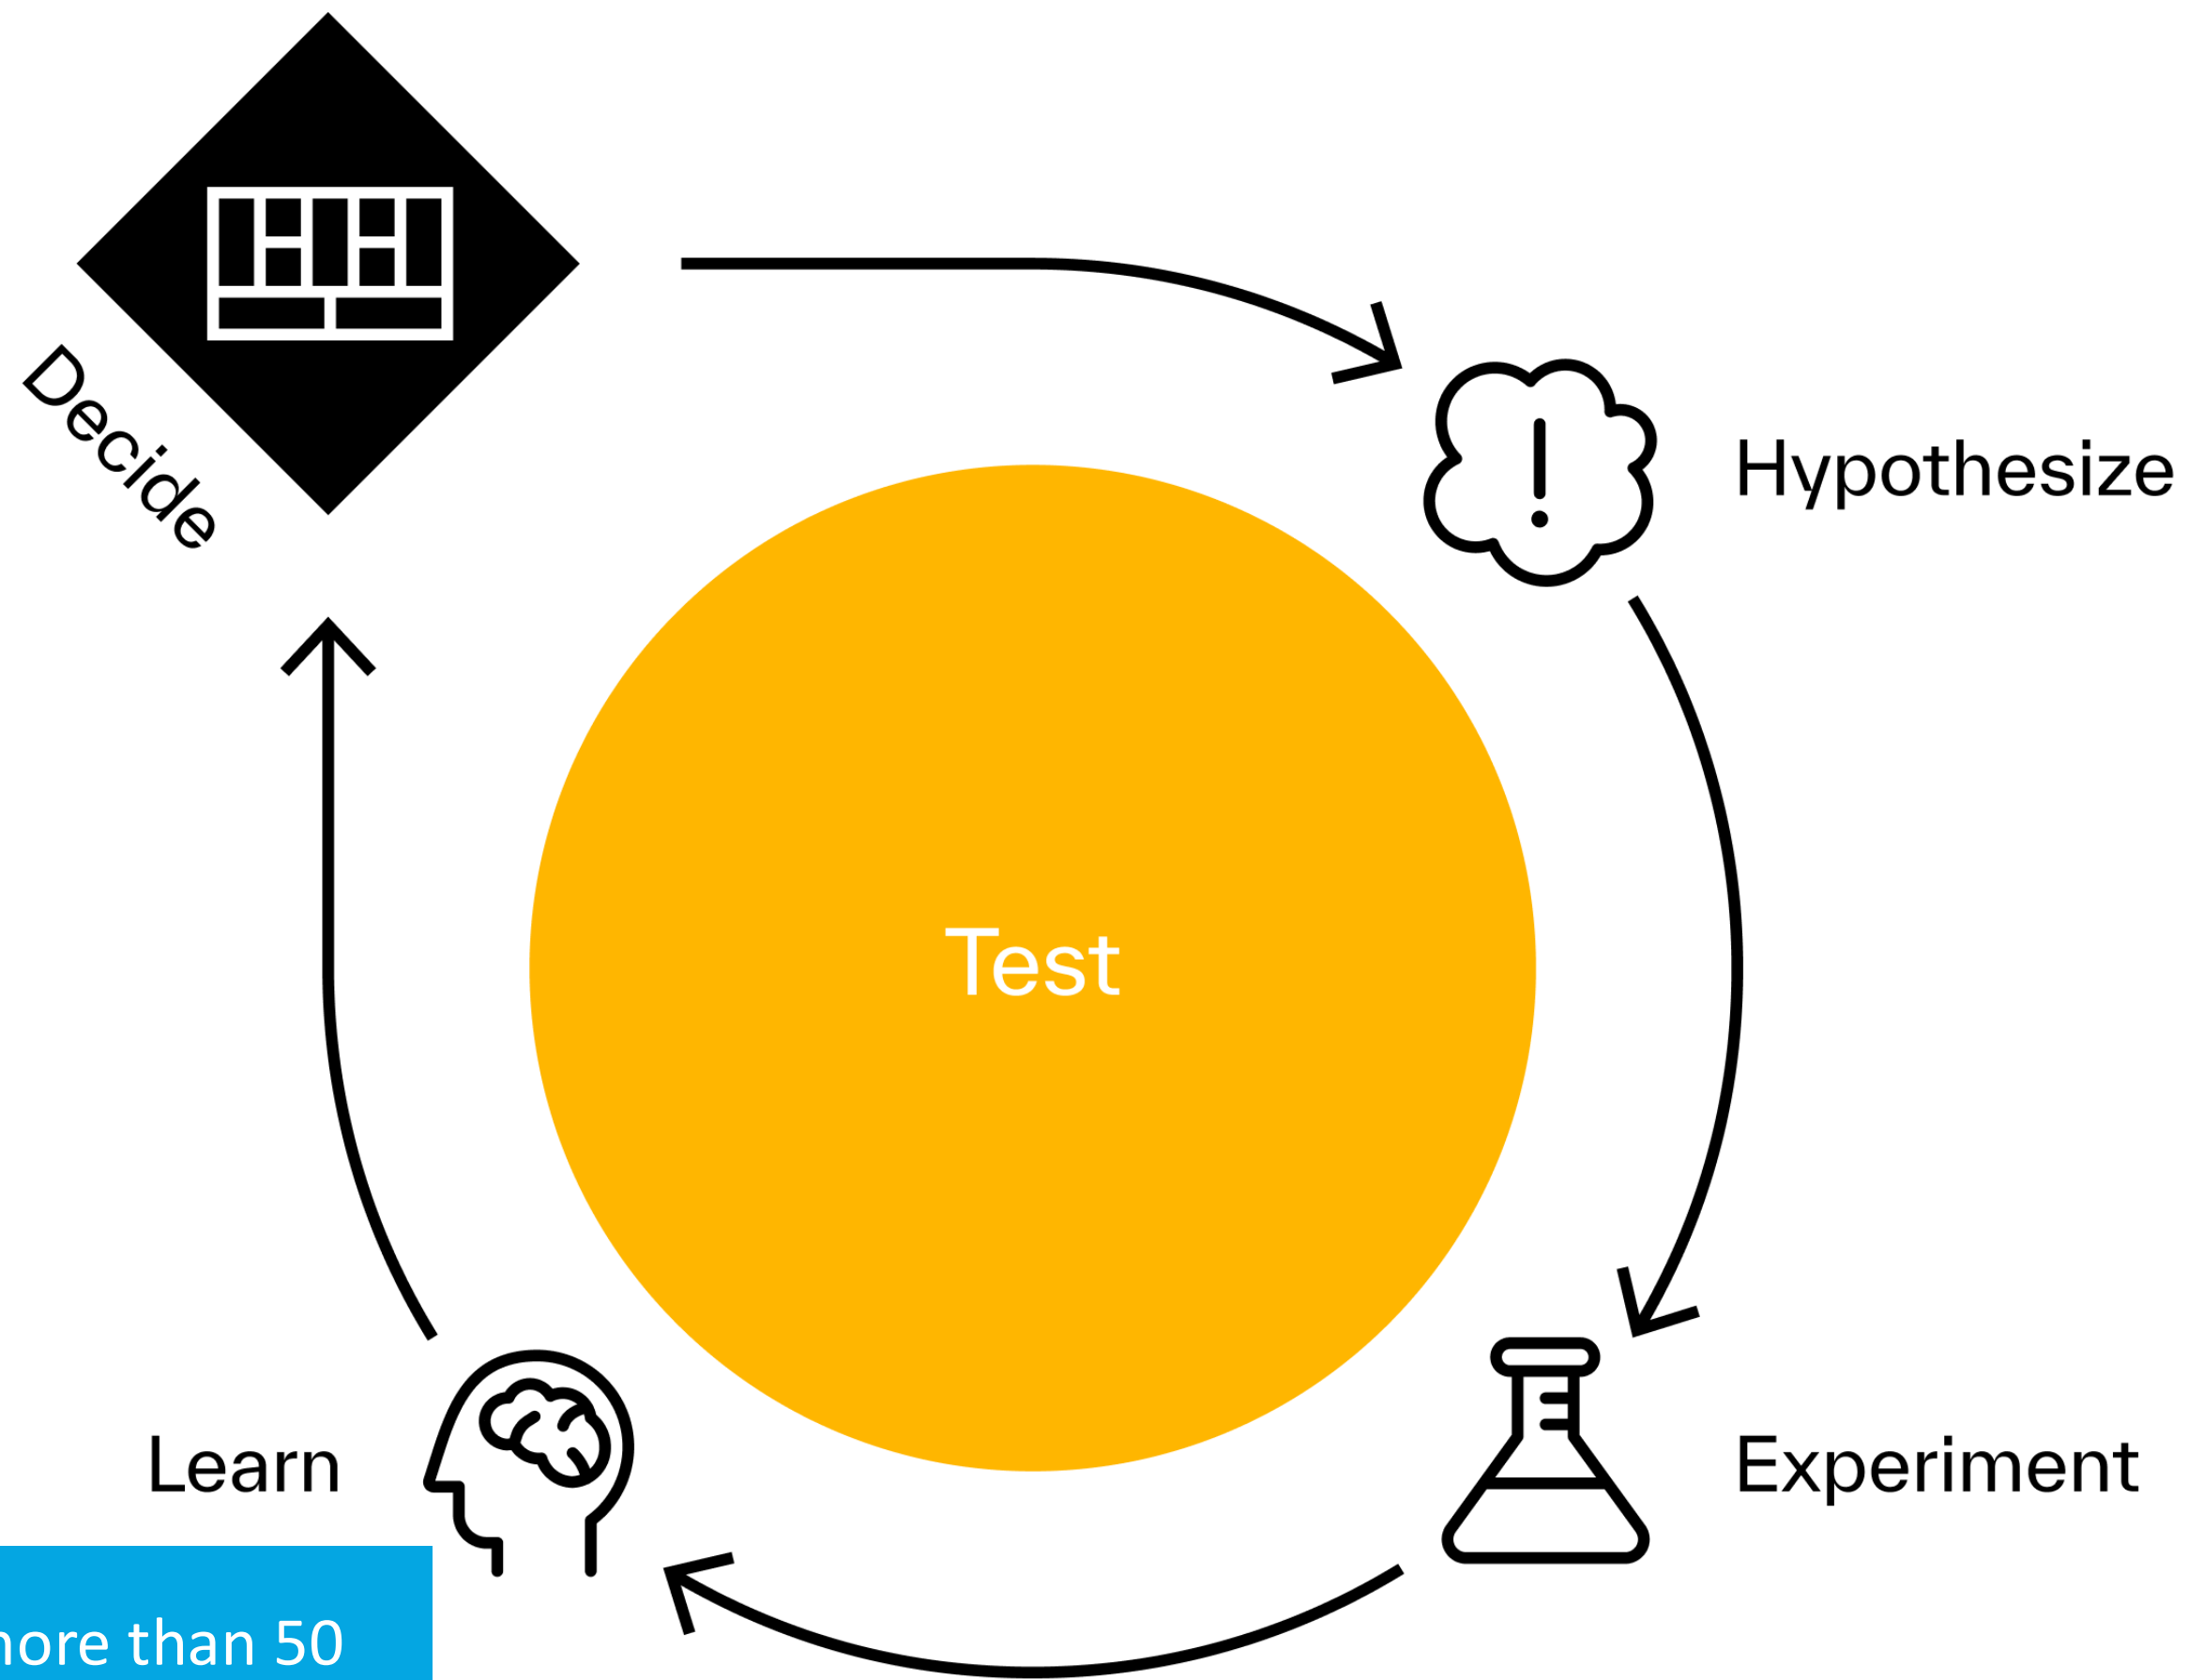

Small 'bet' to test the hypothesis

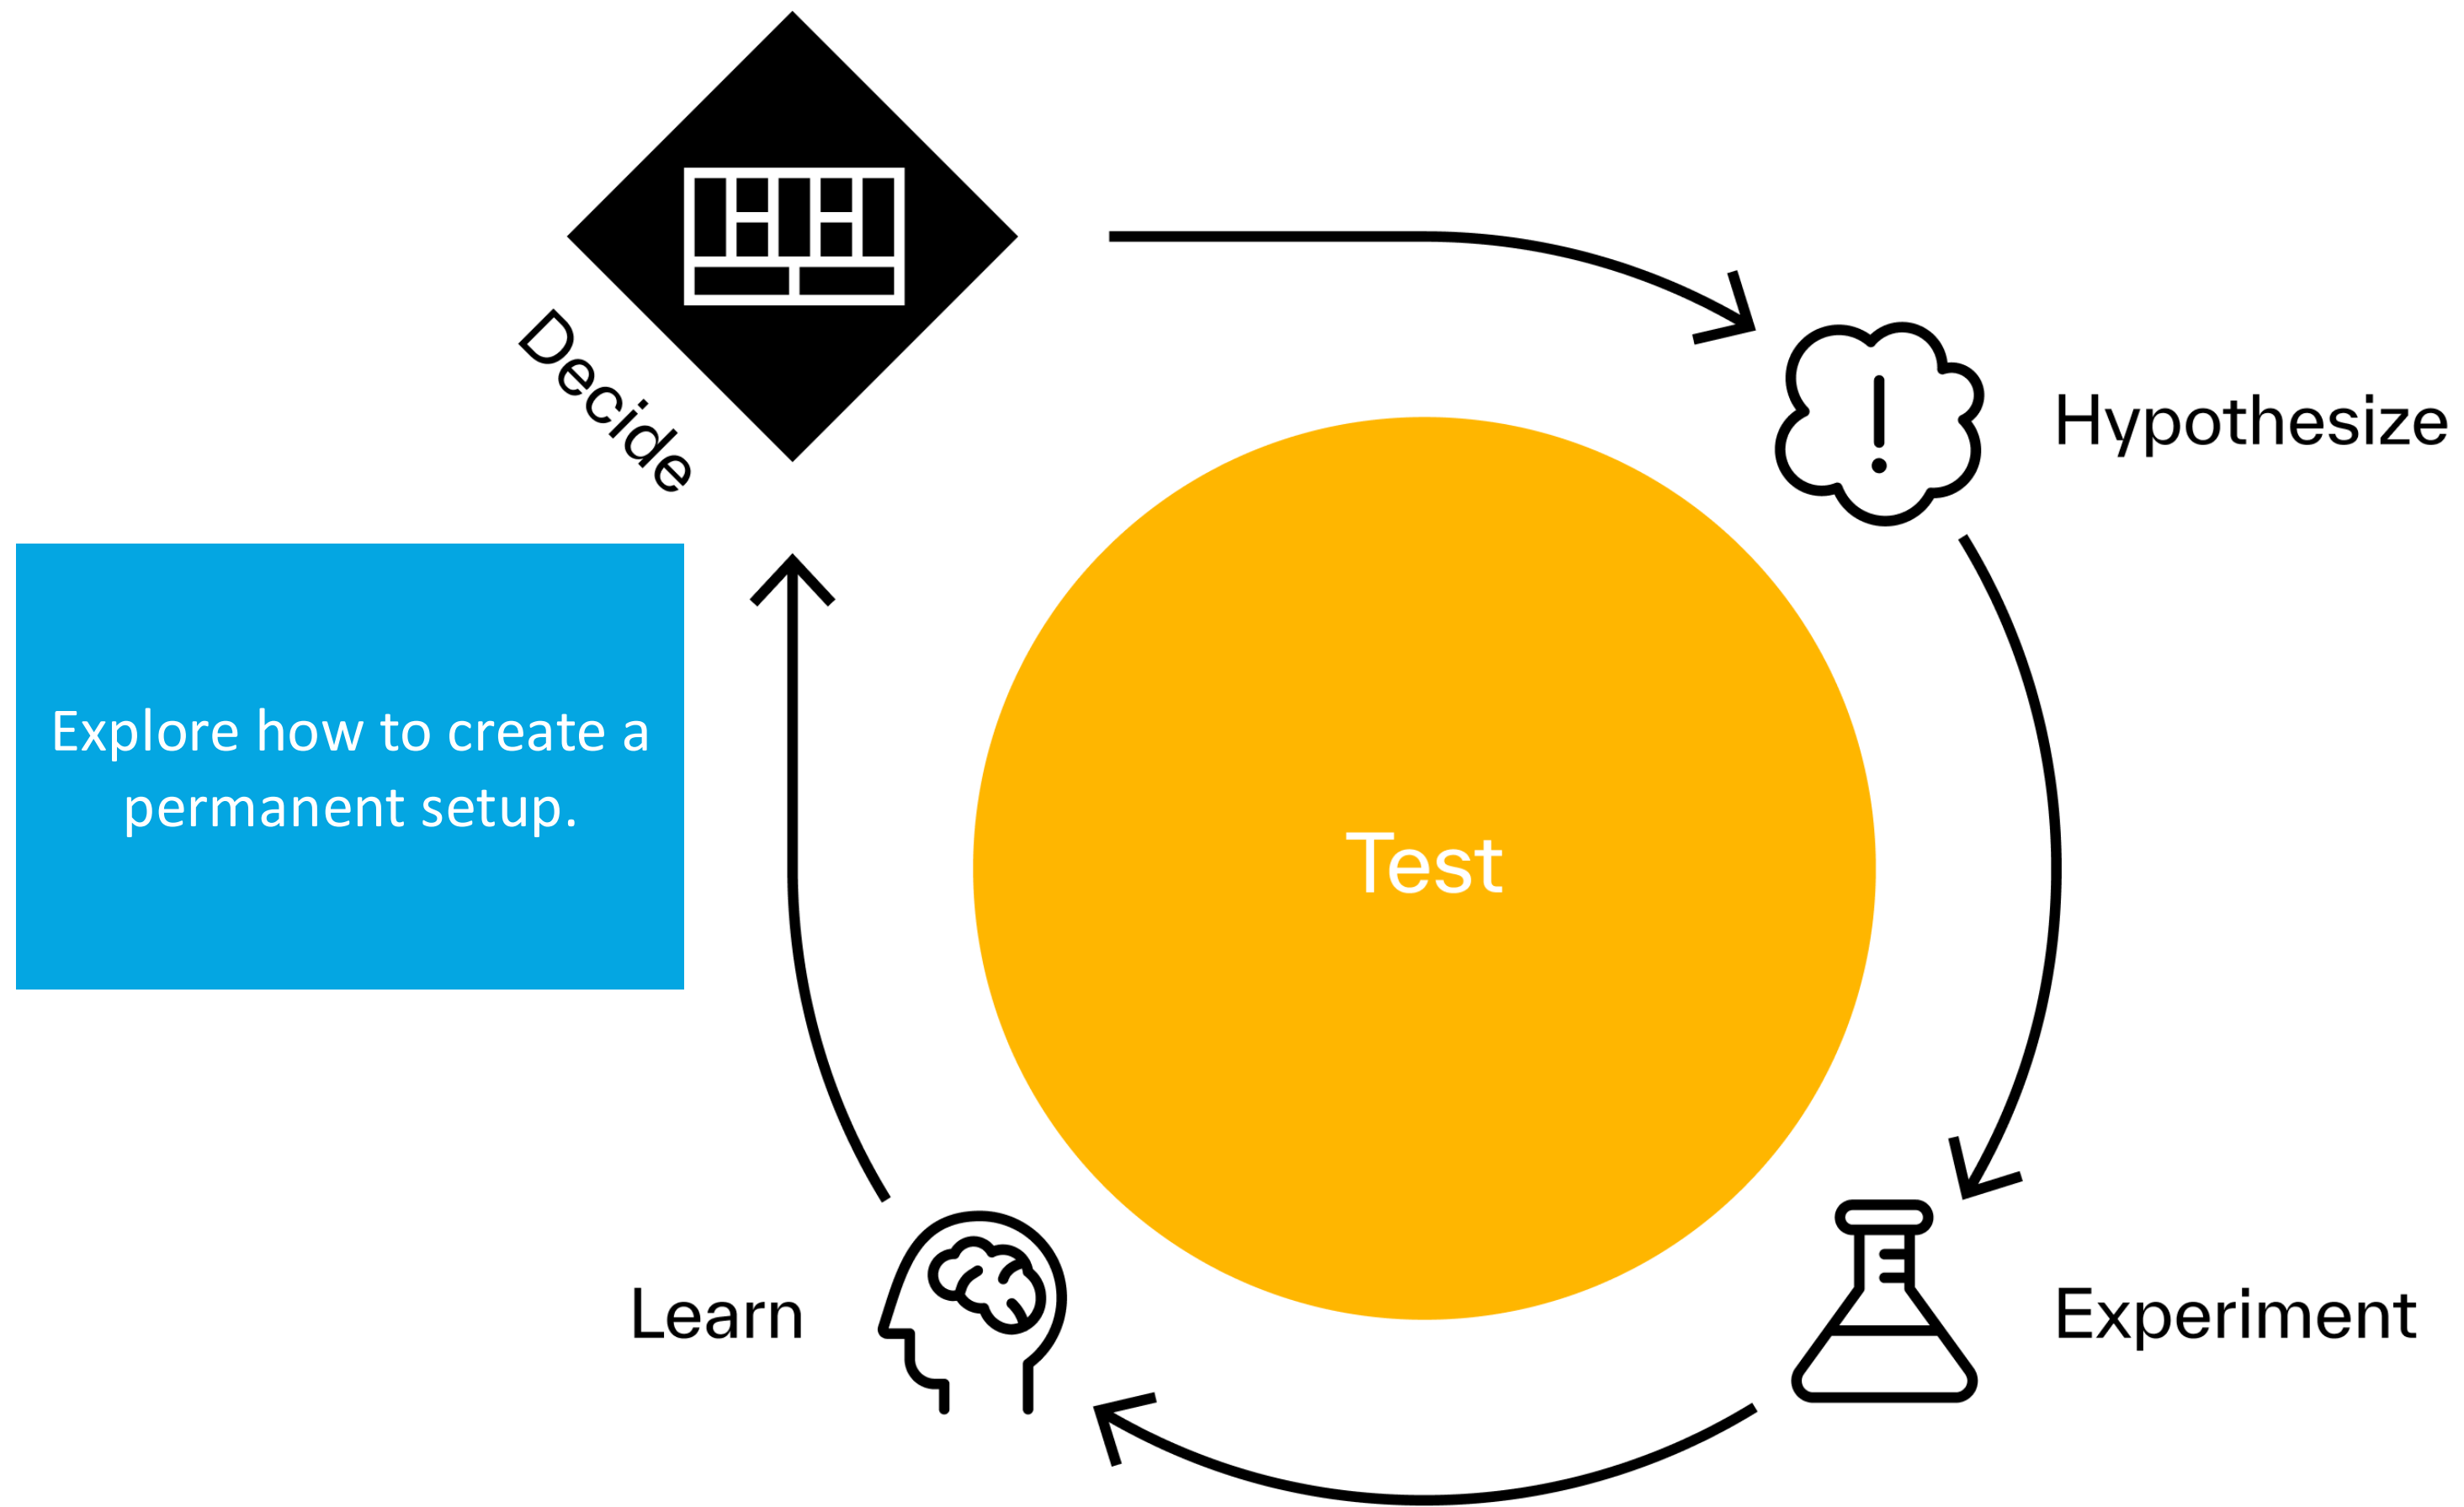

Set up a temporary table in the park for one weekend. Measure how many cups of lemonade are sold each day.

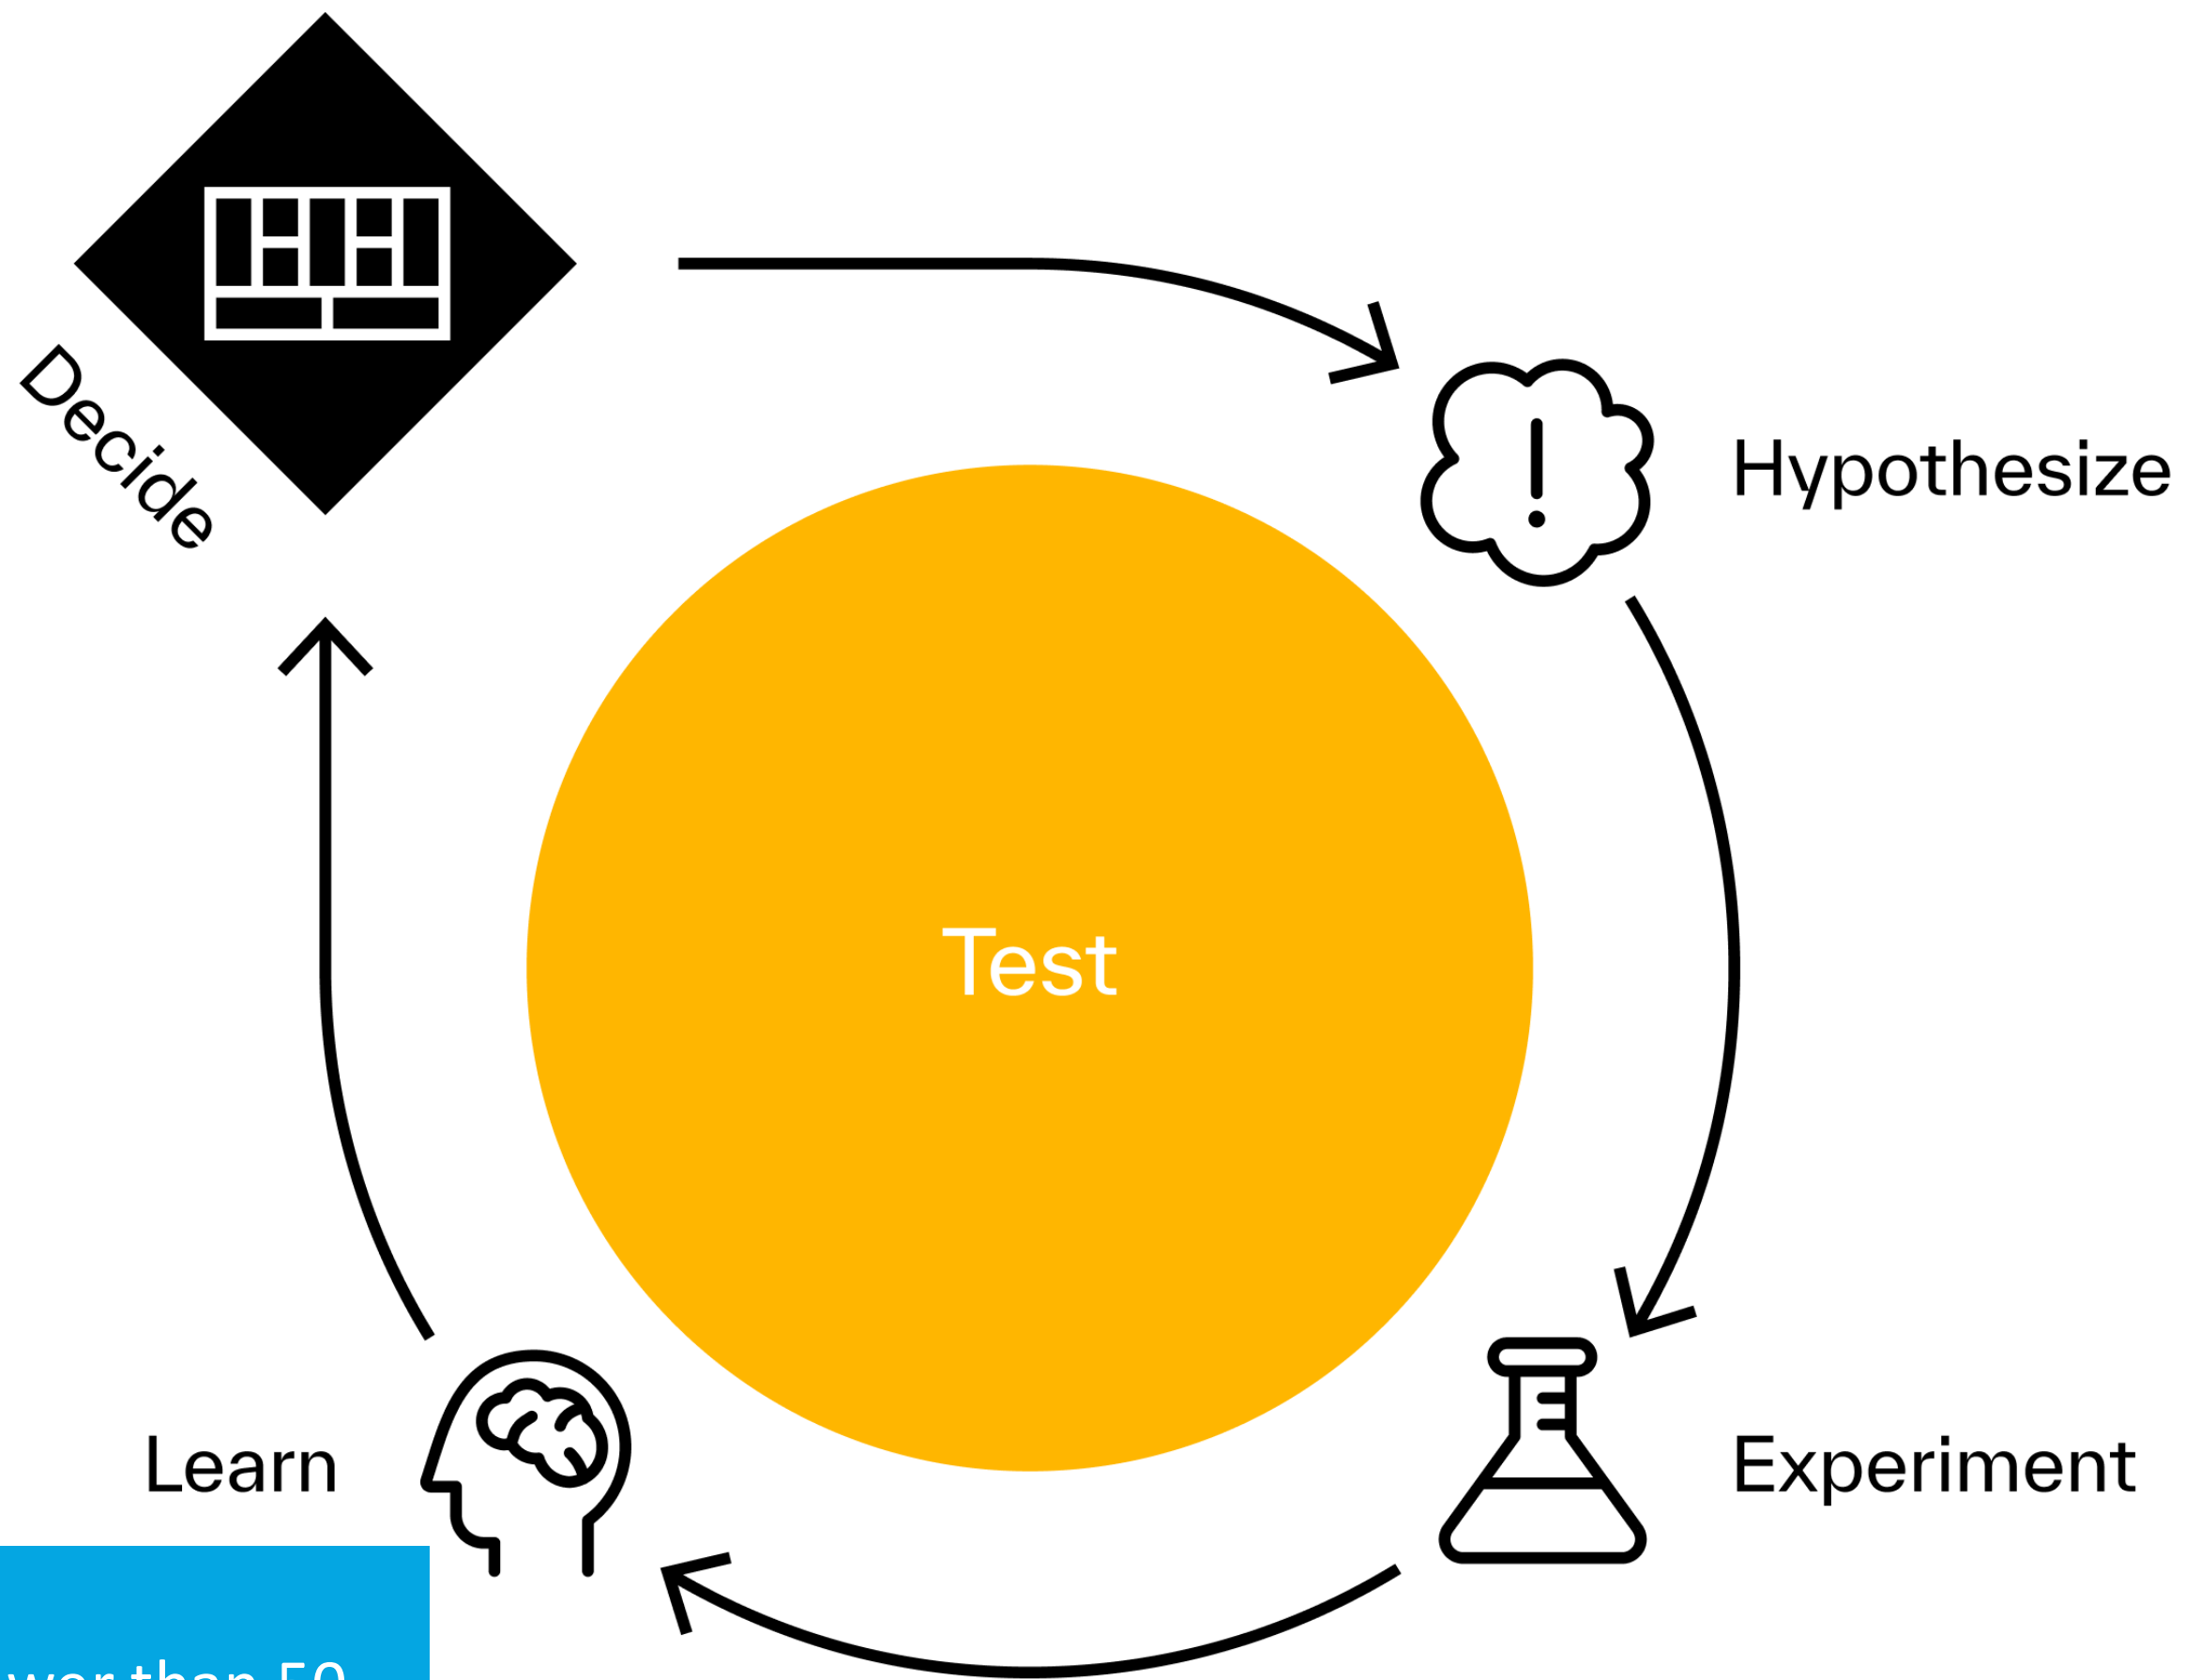

What do we know now?

If you sell more than 50 cups per day, your hypothesis is validated

If you sell fewer than 50
cups per day

Desirable

Increasing persistency is a top priority

We have evidence

We lose approx $260M per year due to people changing employment.

What is Aflac Always?

- Signing up for Aflac Always enables a user to keep their policies at the same payment amount if they leave their current job.
- The user is asked to provide bank details which can be used to transfer to direct pay.
- There is no lapse in the policy coverage.

We have evidence

92% of policies enrolled in Aflac Always transfer to direct payment if a customer moves job.

BUT, only 1% of policies are currently enrolled in Aflac
Always

We believe...

If we can increase the number of people signing up to Aflac Always it will save Aflac ~$25M

Protect your coverage with Aflac Always®

What is it?

Aflac Always® prevents your Aflac policy from lapsing by automatically continuing payments when your employer stops sending premiums on your behalf.

Why should I enroll?

Protecting your policies from lapsing is important. Through Aflac Always®, your coverage remains in place and helps preserve cash benefits, guaranteed renewable coverage, and your underwriting status.

How does it work?

Enrolling in Aflac Always® is quick, easy, and free. It safely stores your payment method, notifies you when your Aflac Always® is going into effect and when automatic payments start.

Why Experiment?

- Uncover what we don't know
- Use a small bet approach to:
 - De-risk the work
 - Ensure we are adding the value we expect
 - Make sure we can track, measure and report the value

We help to make smarter decisions by

- Asking questions
- Testing assumptions
- Measuring value
- Ruthless prioritization

Thank you!
